

EDITORS ADVERTISE CLARKSBURG

The board of trade and newspaper men of this city did the city an invaluable service Sunday, when they entertained several of the Wheeling scribes, as shown by the following splendid advertising given Clarksburg Monday by the Wheeling News, some of whose staff were in the visiting delegation:

In response to an invitation to "come down and visit us" from the newspapermen and the board of trade of Clarksburg, a party of Wheeling newspapermen visited that city Sunday and were entertained there with a lavish hand. A committee of about twenty met the delegation at the train and escorted them to the Waldo hotel, where headquarters were established in a suite or room on the sixth floor.

The entertaining scribes had carefully designed for the visiting scribes who had never visited the Harrison county metropolis before that there should be a revelation and in this they designed well, for it was the unanimous opinion of the Stogietown delegation, that Clarksburg was, next to Wheeling, the greatest town on earth, and destined to become the second city in the state.

Even Clarksburg's austere mayor, Hon. Harvey W. Harmer beamed radiantly from his perch on the lid and said to the visitors:

"Enjoy yourselves, boys." The reception committee had heard of the epicurean palates of the Wheeling scribes and had included as a feature of the day's entertainment a banquet at the Waldo, a festive event that could be referred to only in superlatives. This was followed by a drive through the city in carriages and a visit to the ball game between the Clarksburg and Kindelberger teams.

Wheeling newspaper men will think of Clarksburg, as a result of their visit, as the city beautiful. The whole city, indeed, is a beautiful park, the most beautiful residence city in West Virginia, a fact that has been taken advantage of, for the city abounds in costly and pretty homes and there seems no limit to the territory in the entourage over which the city may extend its boundaries. Surrounding it are miles and miles of magnificent undulating country, a vast park pregnant with nature's beautiful handiwork.

The visitors were shown the new fair grounds, which are said to contain the finest half-mile race track in the state, and which will be opened with a fair in August. The city has two fair grounds and a park, all in the outskirts and all accessible in a few minutes by the city's up-to-date trolley.

Everywhere one hears the ring of the hammer and buzz of the saw, for Clarksburg is building up. Its aggressive citizens and others who visit the city, have faith in its future and that faith is being manifested in the building of new industries and in extending the scope of old ones; the building of handsome new mercantile establishments, trolleys, and big civic improvements.

There are three progressive newspapers published there, besides other publications and Clarksburgers claim for their city that it is the fuel center of the state and that it is the largest distributing point in West Virginia.

There are many large and handsome building blocks being erected; the Waldo is conceded to be the largest and finest hotel in the state; and the industries are many and varied. At least $5,000,000 are paid out there annually in wages. There are 75 coal mines within the trading district of Clarksburg whose average monthly pay roll is not less than $150,000. There are seven glass factories, a tinplate mill, potteries and chemical works, four large brick manufacturing plants, five planing mills, two large machine shops, a brewery, stogie factory and innumerable smaller industries. The B. & O. railroad has 160 people located there. Indeed, there is not a city in the state where there is a greater diversity of manufactured products.

Work is now progressing on the trolley line connecting Clarksburg with Fairmont. This commercial rival, that will bring the cities into closer connection. Much of Clarksburg's wonderful growth and prospects for the future

Arthur Barker, the lad who assisted in burglarizing the postoffice at Robinson's Mills, Wetzel county, and who was subsequently arrested by Deputy Marshal Todd Barrett, made a confession to the officer, which is not devoid of interesting detail.

The postoffice was not the real point of attack, according to Barker. The store in which it is located was the desirable goal. They invaded the store but did not touch the postoffice proper, according to Barker. They got $140 in hard money which they placed in a bag. They also got a good many supplies. Footsteps on the outside scared them and they ran away leaving the money.

When arrested Barker wore a new light suit and a pair of patent leather shoes, which he admits were stolen from the store. He was held here to answer to the grand jury at Wheeling. The other burglar escaped.

PRINTING COMPANY IS ORGANIZED

A new company was organized Monday night under the name of the Cosdon Printing Company, for the purpose of doing all kinds of job printing. The company has a subscribed stock of $5,000 fully paid in. The stockholders are W. Brice Coston, Isaac J. Coston, N. J. Hayman, John H. Clifford and Frank H. Rhodes. This company has purchased the printing department of the James & Law Company and that of the Wade Printing Company, and have established their plant in the Traders annex, where it has secured a suite of seven rooms. The management will be in charge of W. Brice Coston, who has had long experience as a printer, and which guarantees to the company a successful career. It is the intention of the company to do only first-class work, and to give prompt service. We have every reason to believe that the new company will secure its share of the local patronage.

BENEFIT GAME TONIGHT

Captain Moran, of the Telegram team, has announced his line-up for the big benefit game for the Norris family this evening. Moran is positive that he has the better of the argument and that his team will win. Not only should the attendance be good because of the worthy cause, but simply because one of the best games of the year will be tapped.

The regular players of the Clarksburg team, undisputed champions of West Virginia, will be distributed equally and the remainder of the best talent in the city. With two town teams playing against each other and with support equally divided, the game should be alive from start to finish.

Mrs. Norris and the four tots need the money. Therefore everyone in the city, men, women and children should turn out. Even if you don't care for the sport (but there is none such in Clarksburg) you should come or at least send the kids to witness the great national game and especially should you come when in a most worthy cause. It is certainly charity in a most desirable form and at the same time full value will be given for your money. Just your presence will aid a horribly stricken family greatly. We want to tell you again that it is a game of baseball and not a charity bazaar that you will witness.

Captain Sackett, of the News team, announces the following: Morgan, catcher; Caulfield, pitcher; Stevens, first; Ash, second; McBride, short; Sackett, third; Smith, left; Ward, middle, and Gould, right.

The Telegram will have the following men in line: Stanley, catcher; Jacobs, pitcher; Duff, first; Zinn, second; Wagner, short; Weaver, third; Carrell left; Moran, middle, and Smith, right.

The game will be called promptly at 6 o'clock, rain or shine. The best of street car service is guaranteed.

KIEM OUT OF THE RACE

WASHINGTON, July 24—N. G. Kiem, of Elkins, W. Va., who is at the Raleigh, says that he was defeated in his campaign for nomination to the House from his district, and concedes that his opponent, George C. Sturgis, will be nominated by acclamation when the convention meets August 1.

"We made a good fight," said he, "but when the delegates had all been named I found that I did not have enough to secure the nomination; consequently my name will not be presented to the convention."

B. & O. OFFICIALS ARE IN CITY
